

Araceli Segarra

The First Spanish Woman to Summit Everest

CSA CELEBRITY SPEAKERS

Araceli Segarra is a model, television and radio presenter, a mountaineer and star of the IMAX film Everest. She is probably best known as the first Spanish woman to stand on the summit of Everest, and for the numerous climbing expeditions she has organised. In the spring of 2007 Araceli went back to Everest with the IMAX team and filmed a new documentary called Return to Everest.

"Spain's most famous mountaineer"

In detail

Araceli began her prestigious career as one of the world's leading female climbers at the tender age of twenty years, when she successfully climbed Mount Kenya, the highest peak on the African continent. Just one year later she organised and played a leading role in her first major expedition to the Himalaya. But her real breakthrough came in 1996 when as part of the Catalan Everest North Face Expedition Team Araceli stood on top of the world.

What she offers you

The multi-faceted, charming and charismatic Araceli is in great demand as a speaker at leading conferences around the globe. She talks in depth about her climbing experiences and inspires audiences with her fantastic stories.
