

Gabby Logan

Welsh Former International Gymnast, Sports TV & Radio
Presenter & Broadcaster

CSA CELEBRITY SPEAKERS

Gabby Logan was the first female presenter of a live football match and the first woman to host Match of the Day. She currently works for the BBC hosting Inside Sport and has her own show on BBC radio 5 live on Sunday mornings. A former Welsh international gymnast, Gabby has twice been named Sports Presenter of the Year by the TV and Radio Industries Club.

"Gabby had the distinction of being the first ever host of the televised BAFTA Craft Awards for the Millennium"

In detail

Gaby was one of the anchor presenters for the BBC's coverage of the Olympic Games in Beijing in 2008. She joined ITV in 1998 and covered events including the 2003 Rugby World Cup, Euro 2004, The Boat Race and the UEFA Cup, plus football highlights shows On The Ball and The Premiership. The peak of her sporting career was when she gained eighth place in Rhythmic Gymnastics representing Wales at the 1990 Commonwealth Games in Auckland.

What she offers you

Gabby Logan offers vast media experience having presented a range of sports programmes. One of the UK's premier sports broadcasters, she is in demand for award ceremonies, motivational speaking and personal appearances.

How she presents

In constant contact with players and managers both on and off the screen, Gabby Logan is a natural, vivacious and charismatic sports personality with a fantastic sense of humour that adds energy and prestige to any event. Her funny and insightful anecdotes provide an entertaining, informative and motivational addition to a conference or a lively alternative at the end of dinner.
