

Howard Hodgson

Entrepreneur, Author, Journalist and Broadcaster

CSA CELEBRITY SPEAKERS

Howard Hodgson is one of the most prosperous entrepreneurs of the 1980's and has now retired from a successful business career in order to concentrate on writing and broadcasting having gained considerable experience in the media over a 15 year period. Howard's latest book about The Prince of Wales, which is the result of 4 years of painstaking research, has become an instant best-seller around the globe.

"Former Entrepreneur of the Year"

In detail

In 1975 Howard bought the family funeral business and by a process of tight cash control, acquisition in clusters and applied economies of scale the business grew so that 11 years later in 1986 it had 18 branches and a turnover of £3m The business was floated on the USM in 1986 and outstripped all public company competitors' growth and became the largest funeral company in the UK by 1987. After retiring from corporate life and writing his first book Howard became Chief Executive Officer of Ronson plc.
