

Jim Bowen

Comedian and Presenter of Bullseye

CSA CELEBRITY SPEAKERS

Jim Bowen is best known for his Bullseye TV game show, which for fifteen years was avidly watched by over twelve million viewers. Since Bullseye he has made numerous guest appearances on all channels from BBC 2's Weakest Link which he appeared 3 times (twice a winner!) to ITV's Richard & Judy and the delightful morning show with Phil & Fern.

"Super, smashing, great"

In detail

Jim, who honed his act in pubs and clubs in northern England during the 1960s and 1970s, rose to fame on ITV talent showcase The Comedians. It was in 1981 he landed his best-known role, as the presenter of ITV's darts-themed quiz Bullseye, his "super, smashing, great" and "now look what you could have won..." catchphrases helped turn him into a cult figure. In 2005, 2007 & 2008 Jim appeared at The Edinburgh Festival enjoying success in all three seasons. Jim has also appeared in Jonathan Creek, The Grimleys and as Hoss Cartwright in the second hilarious series of Phoenix Nights starring Peter Kay.

What he offers you

Jim's after dinner speeches are regarded by his peers as amongst the funniest on the circuit, where he highlights the frailties and shortcomings of show business and all its trappings, featuring particularly the Bullseye era.

How he presents

Jim is an excellent after dinner speaker and an entertaining host, he is always well received by audiences who love his dry sense of humour.

Languages

He presents in English.
