

Danny Mills

Footballer Turned Investor

CSA Celebrity Speakers Ltd

Danny Mills is a former Premier League and England footballer turned private equity investor. Best known for his time at Leeds United and Manchester City, Danny was an uncompromising defender who played in both the Champions' League and in the World Cup. Injury forced him into retirement, but he remains a regular commentator on TV and radio for the BBC, and also for BT Sport.

"A high profile football legend and highly respected pundit"

In detail

Unusually for a footballer, Danny has always maintained an interest in business, building a substantial residential and commercial property portfolio whilst still playing. On retirement, he focused on business and joined a former HSBC banker, a senior partner at Deloitte, and the founder of the Republic fashion chain to form a new private equity company. One of the company's first and most high-profile investments was the West Cornwall Pasty Co One, now completely overhauled by Danny and his team. Danny was part of the FA Chair's report on the England team and was a close runner-up to Emma Kennedy in Celebrity Masterchef.

What he offers you

Danny shares with audiences worldwide his change of direction from football to business; how he went about it, his dedication to learn and the parallels between his career change and the change businesses often need to embrace to succeed.

How he presents

With his straight-talking style, Danny uplifts every audience and he never fails to leave anyone inspired.

Languages

He presents in English.

Want to know more?

Give us a call or send us an e-mail to find out exactly what he could bring to your event.

How to book him?

Simply phone or e-mail us.

Topics

Investment
Football
After Dinner
Host and Awards