"Doing business nowadays is all about Social CRM & building communities"

In detail

Erik has built and managed local and European sales, marketing and channel teams for large companies and start-up networking organisations, with a specific focus on the internet and mobile communications. One of his expertise is Social CRM & networking and how to integrate these new areas into the current "go to market" of any organisation. He often arranges brainstorm and workshop sessions with senior managers about social CRM, Channel marketing plans and partner accreditation. Community building, web 2.0 and mobility eco system building are often included during these brainstorms & workshops.
