

Frankie Boyle

Comedian & Writer

CSA Celebrity Speakers Ltd

Frankie Boyle is a stand-up comedian and writer. Frankie first established himself as a household name on BBC2's topical news quiz Mock The Week, fast garnering a devoted audience for his unique brand of razor-sharp satirical comedy. Since leaving the show to pursue other projects, he has continued to be one of the most popular and sought-after comics working in the UK, creating his own Channel 4 shows Tramadol Nights and The Boyle Variety Performance, while also performing sold-out tours across the UK. 2014 saw him write and star in Frankie Boyle's Referendum Autopsy, a post-vote dissection of the Scottish independence debate for the BBC.

"Perfectly constructed, weird and wicked one-liners...His eye for absurdity is as sharp as his suits." The Guardian

In detail

Frankie's live work has seen him complete three nationwide sell-out tours, his latest, Last Days Of Sodom, culminating in a string of arena dates. Frankie is a prolific author, having written three books to date. Other TV credits include Live at the Apollo, Kevin Bridges: Live at the Referendum and an original comedy short for BBC iPlayer entitled Frankie Boyle and Bob Mortimer's Cooking Show. Frankie has also been a guest on and hosted Never Mind The Buzzcocks and has made appearances on shows such as Would I Lie To You?, The Jonathan Ross Show and 8 Out Of 10 Cats.
