

Humphrey Walters

Expert on Leadership Management and the Business of Winning

CSA Celebrity Speakers Ltd

For the past 30 years, Humphrey Walters has been inspiring and motivating individuals, teams and corporations in leadership and management and his concept of "The Business of Winning" much of it built on experience, sport and yacht racing.

"Take personal responsibility and be a front runner"

In detail

Humphrey Walters was born in India and spent his early life in Africa and the Middle East. He was educated in England, Canada and the USA. He worked with David McClelland at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and developed the "Achievement Motivation Programme" using his research into the motivation of teams and leaders. Humphrey is unique in that to study teamship and attitudes in a hostile environment; he spent 11 months in a force 10 gale doing the BT Global Challenge - a yacht race sailing the wrong way round the world. He is also very involved in sports and helped the World Cup winning England Rugby Team with their team development. More recently he was involved in helping JCB break the world land speed record in a car with two digger engines! He has studied both academically and practically all aspects of human nature that motivate and inspire people to succeed and win.
