"One of the most cited opinion leaders in Denmark"

In detail

Martin has worked as a speaker, columnist and consultant before co-founding CEPOS in 2004. He has authored and co-authored several bestselling Danish books about a broad range of issues, including global business trends and the environment. Martin has appeared in all major Danish electronic media and is one of the most cited opinion leaders in Danish print media. Internationally, his articles have appeared in Washington Journal Europe and the Daily Telegraph.

What he offers you

Martin explains in great detail to organisations how to be competitive and still exercise corporate social responsibility. He explains how to deal with anti-capitalist, anti-technology and anti-globalization sentiments as well as focusing on positive change management and the upside of the impact for businesses of climate change.

How he presents

Focused, challenging and well-prepared, Martin tailors his presentations to suit each individual event. He follows each seminar with a valuable question and answers session and always inspires audiences.
