IN DETAIL:

In addition to his role as the leader of Interdisciplinary Unit for Sustainable Economy and Extreme Lands Program, Prof. Pant lectures on sustainability issues, development planning and global human security issues in some West European, Chinese and US scientific institutions. His field experience, insight and informed perspective are regularly sought by the business community, scientific organizations, governments and NGOs. Prof. Pant is credited with shaping the global development debate by linking social and environmental sustainability with market competitiveness through the strategic concept of 'place-brand'

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

By exploring vastness, diversity and complexity of human conditions in our world that is ever getting closer by transportation, technology and economic globalisation, Prof. Pant clearly conveys the far reaching implications for organisations, communities and nations. He explains how unprecedented risks, challenges, and opportunities are emerging out of the global churning of eco-systems, ethnic identities and economies. The originality and freshness of his first-hand real-life experience and the profoundness of his reflections and vision are unparalleled.

HOW HE PRESENTS:

A lively and fluid speaker, Prof. Pant is deeply thoughtful and simple and uses comprehensible common terminology.
