

Dr. Ernesto Zedillo

Former President of Mexico

"In 2005 he became a member of the influential Group of Thirty"

Dr. Ernesto Zedillo is a Mexican economist and politician who served as President of Mexico from 1994 to 2000. He successfully faced one of the most acute financial crises in the modern history of Mexico, which favoured a political opening and competitive elections.

TOPICS:

- The Future of Globalisation and what it will mean to Emerging Markets
- "Globaliphobia"
- The Economic Repercussions of Climate Change and Global Warming
- The Importance of Strong Leadership in the Current Economic Climate
- International Economics and Politics

LANGUAGES:

He presents in English and Spanish.

PUBLICATIONS:

2021	Trade in the 21st Century: Back to the Past?
2008	Global Warming: Looking Beyond Kyoto
2007	The Future of Globalisation: Zedillo

IN DETAIL:

Ernesto Zedillo was a Distinguished Visiting Fellow at the London School of Economics. He is also Director of the Center for Globalization Studies and Professor of International Economics and Politics at Yale University since 2002. Currently, Ernesto Zedillo is a member of the G30 and the Board of Directors of the Peterson Institute for International Economics. He is a Distinguished Practitioner of the Blavatnik School of Government at Oxford and in 2011 he was elected an international member of the American Philosophical Society. He holds honorary degrees from Yale and Harvard Universities; the University of Ghana; the Hebrew University of Jerusalem; the University of Massachusetts, Amherst; and the University of Miami.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

Ernesto Zedillo is a global strategist and respected leader throughout the world, an expert in globalisation and emerging markets in Central and South America. Since the ending of his term as president in 2000, Dr. Zedillo has advised numerous organisations and has been a leading voice on globalisation, especially its impact on relations between developed and developing nations.

HOW HE PRESENTS:

Having coined the term globaliphobic to refer to globalisation detractors at the World Economic Forum his speeches are renowned for his ability to get across a strong message in a frank and clear style.