IN DETAIL:

Mark made his F1 debut with the Minardi Team in 2002. After moving to Red Bull Racing in 2007, he had his first F1 win in the 2009 German Grand Prix. Throughout his 12 years in F1, Mark notched up 215 races, nine victories, and accumulated an impressive tally of 42 podium finishes, 13 pole positions and 19 fastest laps. Since stepping away from Formula 1, Mark has had the opportunity to delve into the world of sports broadcasting. Knowledgeable and quick-witted, he has teamed up with national broadcaster Channel Ten for their Australian Grand Prix coverage since 2014. In 2022 Mark enjoyed his sixth year as part of Channel 4's F1 commentary team for its UK terrestrial broadcast coverage. In the 2017 Australia Day Honours list, Mark received his country's highest national honour, becoming an Officer of the Order of Australia.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

Mark is a brilliant motivational speaker who draws the parallels from the exciting and glamorous world of F1 for the corporate world. His no-nonsense, straight-talking personality combined with his strong sense of sportsmanship and fair play have endeared him to fans the world over, and he remains a top-drawer attraction for media and sponsors.

HOW HE PRESENTS:

Mark's ability to step into any environment and develop an easy rapport with audiences large and small is one of his best assets as a speaker.
