

Patrick Kielty

Irish Award-winning Stand-up Comedian & TV Personality

"Patrick is a recognised face & household name in the UK"

Patrick Kielty is a well-known Northern Irish comedian and TV presenter who has been appearing consistently on British TV since the early 90's making his first appearance on Irish television in 1993. He has appeared as a host and comedian on some of the UK's biggest prime time shows.

TOPICS:

- Presenter
- Stand Up Comedy
- Host
- Awards
- Compère

LANGUAGES:

He presents in English.

IN DETAIL:

Since rising to fame in the UK in the mid 1990's Patrick Kielty has toured the country performing as a one-man stand-up comic as well as appearing on a variety of television series including Mock the Week, Live at the Apollo and Have I Got News For You. Though he is foremost a comedian he also boasts an impressive repertoire as a TV presenter, hosting shows such as Fame Academy, Celebrity Love Island and the National Lottery. Patrick frequently draws on his talents as a comedian and host together appearing on topical and satirical comedy series including acting as the host for Channel 4's Stand Up For the Week. Patrick's stand-up tour Help debuted in Belfast's Grand Opera House in early 2016, to both audience and critical acclaim.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

Patrick Kielty rose to prominence as one of Ireland's most exciting and challenging stand-up comedians. He manages to mix satire with charm in his daring routines, making audiences up and down the country laugh. He is always well received. As an awards host, he is exceedingly good and has received rave reviews for his lively and animated compering.

HOW HE PRESENTS:

With his razor-sharp wit Patrick Kielty is a fearless and respected comedy voice. Television has not tamed him and he is still one of the funniest comedians around today.