

Rt Hon. Lord Hammond

Former Chancellor of the Exchequer

"A veteran policy expert and distinguished political advisor"

Philip Hammond is the former Chancellor of the Exchequer in the British Government. He was a UK Cabinet Minister and member of the British Government for almost a decade. He has held two of the four Great Offices of State, and lead four departments over nine years in Government.

TOPICS:

- Global Economy and Trade
- Leadership
- Brexit
- Technological Revolution
- Emerging Markets
- China
- Climate Change

LANGUAGES:

He presents in English.

IN DETAIL:

Philip is one of only three people to serve continuously in the UK cabinet (2010-2019), serving under Prime Ministers David Cameron and Theresa May. He took over the role of Chancellor of the Exchequer soon after the 2016 Brexit Referendum at a time of unprecedented uncertainty for the economy. He is strongly of the view that the best way to deliver the referendum result would be through negotiating a deal with the European Union and the UK that keeps the two close economically. Philip has considerable experience of working with China, and clear views about how to manage the integration of China as a major economic and strategic power into the global system. He also retains a close interest in the strategic challenges facing the Western Alliance.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

Philip Hammond has a strong eye on the challenges faced by developed economies, specifically: the technological revolution and how it is already transforming the way we work and live our lives; climate change and how to harness the market economy to deliver decarbonisation; demographic shifts and the challenges of an ageing population in the UK and across the world, as well as the challenge of increasing productivity.

HOW HE PRESENTS:

Erudite and professionally experienced in the public sector, Philip Hammond is an insightful choice for the corporate circuit.