IN DETAIL:

Tim Smit's innovative creation was designed as an educational tool on environmental issues. The pair of biomes containing two opposite eco systems, Mediterranean and rainforest, has contributed over one billion pounds to the Cornish industry and has been named as the "eighth wonder of the world". Tim continues to be the Director of the Eden Project and drives it's success as a global attraction and award winning captivated garden. A passionate advocate of the environment, he has completed a number of other ventures, including the Lost Gardens of Heligan. Another of Tim Smit's recent business ventures is The Shipwreck Centre, which he bought in 2016 motivated by the need to protect the heritage of the port it sits in.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

The inspirational Founder of the Eden project, Tim Smit is the man some call "The Richard Branson of Cornwall". He shows audiences how he has achieved incredible success against all odds combining vision, inspirational leadership, great marketing and brilliant planning to create a unique experience.
