

Uri Levine

Co-Founder of Waze & FeeX

"Fall in love with the problem, not the solution"

Uri Levine is a passionate serial entrepreneur and disruptor, co-founder of Waze, the world's largest driving traffic and navigation app. The app, now used by more than 250 million drivers around the globe, was acquired by Google in June of 2013 for $1.1 billion.

TOPICS:

- Disruptive Technology
- Waze Journey
- Entrepreneurship with Passion
- Startups
- STARTips
- Fintech

LANGUAGES:

He presents in English.

IN DETAIL:

Since then, Uri has pursued his dream to create great value for large audiences, through the series of start-ups he has founded. His vision is specifically intended to disrupt inefficient markets and improve under-functioning services with a focus on solving big problems and saving consumers time and money, while empowering them and changing the world for the better. A true entrepreneur, who studied Economics at the University of Tel Aviv, he has worked in all possible areas of business, including product development, marketing, business development, running start-ups and providing coaching, above all to CEOs.

WHAT HE OFFERS YOU:

In line with his vision, Uri inspires audiences around the world through the lens of entrepreneurship and disruption. His presentations rely heavily on his entrepreneurial and personal experiences with the intention to benefit people from the lessons he has learned, and look back on both success and failures he has witnessed along his path.

HOW HE PRESENTS:

Passionate about start-ups, Uri delivers highly engaging and fascinating keynotes to entrepreneurs and companies all over the globe.

© 2026 Celebrity Speakers Ltd