IN DETAIL:

Vanessa-Mae began studying piano at the age of three and violin at five, quickly demonstrating exceptional musical ability. After specialist training in Beijing, she continued her studies at London's Royal College of Music before making her international performance debut in 1988. By her early teens, she had already recorded classical albums and performed with prestigious orchestras. Her career took a remarkable turn in 1995 with the release of The Violin Player. Blending classical compositions with pop, electronic and contemporary influences, the album introduced the violin to a much wider audience and established Vanessa-Mae as a global recording star. She has since sold more than 10 million albums worldwide and received over 40 international awards for her classical and pop recordings. Her music has reached audiences across continents, with concert broadcasts shown in more than 100 countries. Beyond music, Vanessa-Mae pursued her lifelong passion for skiing, qualifying for and competing in the 2014 Winter Olympic Games in Sochi, representing Thailand. This remarkable achievement added a new dimension to her career, demonstrating her willingness to step beyond established boundaries and embrace an entirely different world of high-performance competition.
